

ABSTRACT

A method of accelerating a destruction of a vortex formed at a rear of a wing of an aircraft by merging first and second co-rotating eddies. A periodic perturbation is generated adjacent an area of creation the first eddy. The periodic perturbation has 5 a wavelength capable of exciting at least one instability mode of the first eddy.